BEETLE KILLS BEES
BRISBANE: An African beetle is waging war on Australian bees, with researchers warning it could decimate the bee-hive industry and push up food prices.

University of Queensland entomologist Bronwen Cribb says an initial survey of the state's licensed beekeepers showed smaller back yard operators took a king hit from the beetle in 2009.